Ground for Objection: Excessive fee increases

Re:Sound is proposing significant fee increases for all its live events tariffs, which CAPACOA deems excessive.

In the notice of grounds for Re:Sound 5.A, for the period of 2024 to 2030, Re:Sound hypothesizes that the inflation rate for this 7-year period will be 4.8% on average. This hypothesis is based on the average for the period 2021-2023. This three-year period saw inflation levels that were well above historical averages. Inflation has since slowed down and there is absolutely no indication that inflation will remain this far above the 2% target of central banks. In fact, the Bank of Canada reduced its policy interest rate by 1.75 percentage point since April 2024, to 3.25. This suggests that the Bank of Canada is confident inflation will continue to slow down in 2025.
